CJV Working & Tracking:

- The Senate has the final clock running before a vote on the Illegitimate Court Counteraction Act. This passed the House, with leadership touting CJV's support.
- The Born-Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act passed the House yesterday, in advance of today's March for Life event. It failed, however, to move forward in the Senate. A vote of 60 Senators is needed to start the countdown clock to a vote on the measure, and every Democrat voted against. U.S Senators James Lankford (R-OH), Jim Risch (R-ID) and Katie Britt (R-AL) all issued press statements noting CJV's support for the Born Alive Bill.
- The Protection of Women and Girls in Sports Act has also moved to the Senate after passage in the House. CJV is the only national Jewish organization advocating to reserve women's sports, prisons, and private spaces for biological women.
- Rabbi Yaakov Menken was an invited VIP to President Trump's Inauguration, but decided, like the President himself, to stay indoors.
- CJV meetings, both in the Capitol and online, ran the gamut from strategizing on future legislation, executive orders, and federal agency rule-making; committee and coalition efforts to combat antisemitism; and protecting allies (like Elon Musk) from false charges.
